Continuation of 4(e) Other: As stated in the Office Action dated July 17, 2007, amendments to the claims which add the functionality of tracking a users reactions such as eye tracking is a distinct invention from the original claims of obtaining answers from a questionnaire. Therefore, current claims 27, 37-41, and 43 are directed towards an invention that has already been restricted based upon original presentation in the Office Action dated July 17, 2007. Original claims 1-36 were directed towards a system and method for providing a marketing and testing purchase environment that includes a user interface configured to receive user input. A purchase environment is displayed and the users are also provided with questions regarding products. The user's answers to the questions and the data collected regarding their interactions ("clicks") with the purchase environment are collected and analyzed.

Amended claims 27, 37-41 and 43 are directed towards a method for collecting testing data. The user is presented with an image of a test product that is on a shelf. The data collected is based upon their physical reactions such as eye focus and heart rate. The dependent claims incorporate providing questions to users and collecting the user responses, however, there remains a distinct difference in the methodology used for data collection. The original claims collected data via user interactions (i.e. clicks) while the new claims collect data via user reactions.

Since applicant has received an action on the merits for the originally presented invention, this invention has been constructively elected by original presentation for prosecution on the merits. Accordingly, claims 27, 37-41 and 43 are withdrawn from consideration as being directed to a non-elected invention. See 37 CFR 1.142(b) and MPEP § 821.03.
